Fire Strikes Where People Live

Three hundred ninety-nine thousand home fires were reported in the United States in 2007, according to the National Fire Protection Association's . (NFPA's) recently released Home Structure Fires report. The category of homes includes one and two-family dwellings and apartments.

On average, eight people die in home fires every day in the United States - a total of 2,865 deaths. Home fires accounted for 84 percent of all civilian fire deaths and resulted in 13,600 injuries. Direct property damage was estimated at $7.4 billion.

The report further breaks down causes and circumstances of home fires reported during the four year period of 2003-2006. Highlights include:

- ◆ Roughly one in three reported home fires and home fire deaths occur in December, January, and February.
- ◆ Cooking equipment is the leading cause of fires, civilian fire injuries, and unreported fires.
- ◆ About 41 percent of reported home fires began in the kitchen or cooking area.
- ◆ Smoking was the leading cause of civilian home structure fire deaths.
- ◆ Heating ranked second in home structure fire deaths (in one- or two-family dwellings and apartments) overall, and was the leading cause of fire-related deaths in one- or two-family dwellings.
- ◆ Heating equipment fires caused the largest percentage of direct property damage.
- ◆ Children under five and adults 65 and over face the highest risk of home fire death.
- ◆ Almost two thirds of home fire deaths occurred in homes without working smoke alarms.
- ◆ Ninety-six percent of all homes have at least one smoke alarm.
- ◆ More than half (53 percent) of the people killed by home fires were in the room or area of origin when the fire started.
